About Us

HELEN MCCONNELL PHOTOGRAPHY

We are frequently asked, "How do you create such stunning images?" Our answer: "It is easy when you are on your right path, doing what you are meant to be doing, and loving what you do."

I was born into a very artistic family with my father being a World Renowned Master Potter and Artist. I wasn't very much into painting or potting, but put a camera in my hand and a couple in love and I am in my element. My business aim is to provide my couples with an absolutely awesome experience on their Wedding Day, and then present them with the most beautiful wedding album that they've ever seen!! I love watching their faces as they first turn the pages of their brand new wedding album!! There's always a look of awe and quite often a tear of joy as well!

We build up such a beautiful fun relationship with our couples that when they decide to start a family they quite often engage us to continue the next milestone of their lives. They feel so comfortable with us on their Wedding Day that sharing the next life event by having us provide their photographic memories of maternity and baby photographs is a natural step for them...and we love it too!

OUR STYLE

Describing a style is sometimes more difficult than it seems. There are certainly adjectives that we can use to describe how we see Helen McConnell Photography: sexy, sophisticated, edgy, avant-garde, fashionable. But these are just words. Helen McConnell Photography's personal brand is more of a feeling - a very special experience. When you are being photographed by us, it will be fun, you will feel powerful, lighthearted, stunning...on top of the world, because that is how we envision our clients. We take the time to get to know you - to learn what will evoke the natural smile, what will cause you to show your sensual side, perhaps even a tear or two, what will allow you to just be you. That is what makes our photos stand out - the experience that allows the inner you to shine.

A Love Story written by you...

How to avoid those avoidable Wedding Dramas

We've all heard the stories from brides who had the misfortune of experiencing those unexpected wedding day dramas. These seemingly, innocent, overlooked situations can easily turn into a catastrophe for an already-stressed bride.

A couple and their families have so many arrangements to be made for that big day, that the small things can be either overlooked or under-estimated.

Having sometimes experienced these "situations" with the bride and trying to find rapid solutions, we thought we would compile a helpful list to assist you avoid the same pitfalls.

Have a wonderful Wedding Day and have fun!

- * Spray tans – have a trial 1 month before the wedding and err on the side of lighter than darker....you can always top it up with bronzer. Always use a professional.
- * Boost your skin care program with drinking more water and facials. But avoid having a facial the week of your wedding, as the toxins exuded from your skin can produce blemishes.
- * Avoid using new makeup you haven't previously tested on your skin. This includes all eye make-up, which can be notorious for watery eyes at best and red, inflamed eyes at worst. It's best to use a professional here too and have a trial to make sure you're happy.
- * Keep some breath mints and a lipstick or gloss plus some tissues in a small purse that one of your bridal party can keep on standby for you.
- * Avoid eating the following the week prior to the wedding to bypass an allergic reaction: Seafood & new cuisines you're not used to.
- * Have an emergency sewing kit available with matching cotton colours for bride's and bridesmaids' dresses
- * Ensure the flowers you have selected don't set up an allergic reaction; e.g.sneezing, runny eyes, headache. Ask your florist for a small posy prior to ordering the flowers and place close to where you spend a lot of time during the day. Some of the Asian lilies are superbly perfumed, but can be the cause of headaches for some people.
- * If you have celebratory drinks while getting ready, remember that it would not be lawful for your celebrant to marry you, if you are inebriated. This applies to the groom and your witnesses.
- * Go to the dentist a couple of months before your wedding to sidestep any untoward dental problems; e.g. toothache, and guarantee beautiful smiles for your photography.
- * Have all waxing carried out a few days before the wedding, to avoid any irritating redness and rash.
- * Have a supply of various sized bandaid strips for blisters.
- * Avoid people with the "sniffles"...the last thing you want on this amazing day is a cold. Have a good diet and take extra immune support vitamins.
- * Insert silicone "Party Feet" into shoes of bride and bridesmaids.....maybe even treat the groom and groomsman....as you all will be on your feet for a lot of hours. Spare pantyhose/stockings could be a lifesaver as well.
- * Delegate jobs to those you know will accommodate your wishes, and try and minimise your workload closer to the day.
- * Enjoy your wedding plans, but don't allow them to overwhelm you. This is a fantastic time for you and you should enjoy the lead-up as much as the wedding...HAVE FUN!
